Tuckahoe serves as a valuable source of early-eighteenth century architectural design. With its complex of plantation dependencies and with its interior decoration and arrangement, it serves as an excellent example of the Virginia house and plantation of the eighteenth century. It also served as the seat of one of the cadet branches of the Randolph family of Turkey Island and as one of the early homes of Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States.

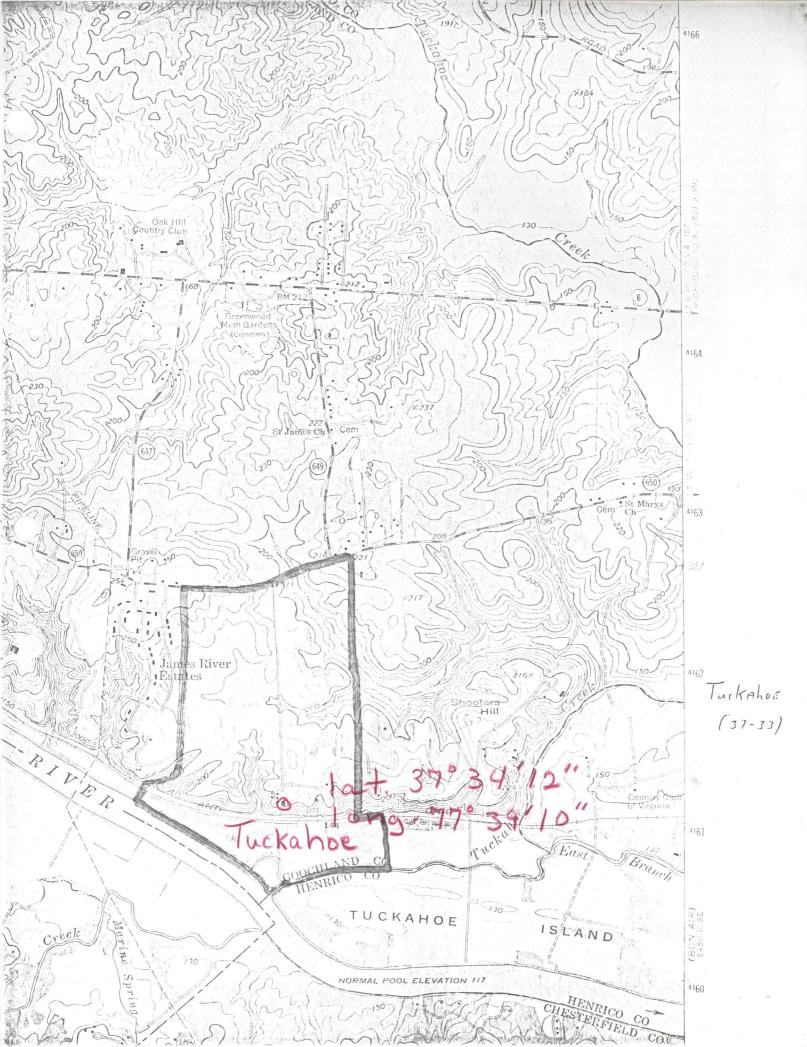

The property on which Tuckahoe stands was originally owned by William Randolph (1651-1711) of Turkey Island who left part of the land to his son Thomas. Thomas Randolph (1683-1730) enlarged his share in 1714 by purchasing an adjoining tract from his brother. Some time in the first quarter of the century Thomas Randolph began construction of the present house. At his death in 1730 Thomas left the plantation to his son William, who, in turn, at his death in 1745, left the property to his son, Thomas Mann Randolph (1741-1793). During the infancy of Thomas Mann Randolph, Peter Jefferson, the father of the future President, served as guardian and lived with his family at Tuckahoe. With the death of Thomas Mann Randolph in 1793, Tuckahoe came into the possession of his son, another Thomas Mann Randolph (1791-circa 1850), who held the property until 1830 when it was sold. Tuckahoe subsequently descended through the Wight, Allen and Coolidge families until it was purchased in 1935 by John Hopkins Baker and Jessie Gresham Baker, with their mother, Isabelle Ball Baker having a life estate.
