STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Include Personages, Dates, Events, Etc.)

Prestwould is one of the most perfectly preserved eighteenth-century plantations in Virginia. Built by Sir Peyton Skipwith, one of Virginia's few baronets, the house took seven years to build, and was probably completed about 1795. The great stone mansion still retains much of the beautiful scenic wallpaper, and even some of the curtains installed by Lady Jean Skipwith. Its fine collection of furniture was also acquired by the Skipwiths. In addition to the plantation house, Prestwould possesses a complete set of plantation outbuildings, including a charming octagonal pavilion, said to be used for card games. Traces of the extensive gardens are still to be seen. Sir Peyton and his second wife, Lady Jean, are buried in the family cemetery in the garden.

Prestwould, in its almost untouched condition, provides an all too rare glimpse into the life and tastes of a prominent landed family of the eighteenth century.
