DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

I. General Statement:

A. Architectural Character: Centre Hill is an example of the transitional Greek Revival Style of the 1820's. The sumptous interiors on the first floor are partly the result of an alteration around the middle of the century, and there have been other later alterations. The east wing was added about 1850.

B. Condition of the fabric: Good.

II. Description of Exterior:

A. Over all dimensions: The original five-bay house was 81' square, before the addition of the two-bay east wing. Both the main section of the house and the wing are two-stories high and have an English basement. There is a large cupola on the main section.

B. Foundation: Brick.

C. Wall Construction: Mellow vari-colored brick is laid in Flemish bond. Closers are used regularly at the corners and irregularly at openings. The east wing has brick pilasters between each window, and a stone water table.

D. Porches: The north facade has a flat-roofed five-bay verandah with a modified Greek Ionic intablature (after Minard Lafever) supported by six Greek Ionic columns. The north three-bay verandah has four identical columns and an identical entablature. Both verandahs have two pilasters employing the anthemion motif. The floors are of black and white marble. The verandahs are raised to the level of the first floor. On the podii of the steps leading to the south doorway reposes a carrara marble couchant wolfhound.

E. Chimneys: There are four interior end chimneys with corbelled brick and stone caps.

F. Openings:

1. Doors and Doorways: The recessed doorways have ellipitical transom_s with complex tracery and sidelights having double doors opening into the hall from the center bay of the north and south facades.

2. Windows: The windows on the south verandah have tall sixover-six double-hung wooden.sashes. The rest of the windows on the lower floor are nine-over-six double hung sashes. On the second floor all the double -hung windows have six-over-six sashes, except for those in the wing, which have three-lights over three. All the windows have stone lintels with corner blocks with rosettes and louvered shutters. The center-bay windows have sidelights.

G. Roof: A low hip-roof with a flattened cupola and a dentil cornice covers the house.

III. Description of the Interior:

A. Floor Plans: The first floor has a spacious central hall with the stair in the northeast corner. Two large rooms open off each side of the hall. The wing contains two smaller rooms opening off a stair hall, entered from either of the two eastern rooms of the main block. The second floor has a central hall opening from the top of the stair with a narrow long hall branching to the east and the west. There are three large rooms across the front, and one on either side of the hall in the rear. Two rooms open off the hall in the wing. EINSTRUCTIO

#7 Description

B. Stairways: There are two stairways. A wide three-run open-string stair with turned balusters and ornamental brackets ascends in the northeast corner of the main hall. The first two square newels are topped by urns, the others by spheres. This stair is an early-twentieth-century replacement of the original in the same location. A two-run stair leads up to the cupola from the second floor. A narrow two-run open-string stair ascends in the east end of the wing.

C. Wall and ceiling finish: Painted plaster.

D. Doorways and Doors: Wide panelled doors have doorways with Doric pilasters supporting a complex molded and beaded entablature. The double sliding doors with enriched talon molding delineating the panels and flanked by Greek Corinthian engaged columns to divide the two west rooms are a later addition. On the second floor six-panelled doors are surrounded by molded trim with corner blocks and rosettes. These, too, are later additions.

E. Trim: The hall is elaborately trimmed with ceiling panels delineated by molding, a cornice employing an acanthus and blossom motif. A large elliptical arch carved with a dogwood blossom, egg-and-dart molding and acanthus leaves spans the center of the hall. The large keystone element of the arch also bears an acanthus leaf motif. A vertically panelled dado occurs in the hall and the east rooms. Rooms other than the hall have a heavy carved modillion cornice with egg and dart molding and acanthus leaves. Window trim consists of symmetrical molding with beading, corner blocks, and rosettes with beaded molding. Panelled wooden shutters fit into the window recesses. The altered second floor trim consists of symmetrically molded door and window trim. Some of the doors have simple arches, keystones and fanlights.

F. Heating: There are fireplaces in all of the rooms except for the halls and baths. The first floor rooms have marble mantels with keystones and carved spandrels. The mantels on the second floor are Colonial Revival. The present heating system incorporates hot water radiant heating. The circular radiators in the four corners of the hall are unusual.

IV. Site:

Centre Hill is set in downtown Petersburg on a hill over-looking the Appomatox River. A circular drive runs by the south facade enclosing a space of green lawn and large trees. A short lawn is between the house and lane on the north. The large original park surrounding Centre Hill has been greatly encroached upon by early-twentieth-century houses on the east and west, and by a modern apartment building on the north.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Center Hill with its gracious facade, its fine interiors, its long association with the well-known Bolling and Davis families, and its connections with two United States presidents is a distinguished Petersburg landmark. The transitional Greek Revival-style house was built in 1823 for Robert Bolling, a member of a prominent and influential Petersburg family. Situated on the old militia muster ground, the building was surrounded by a large landscaped park. This house and another were soon thereafter described by Mrs. Anne Royall, a visitor to Petersburg, as being "superb buildings, and the view from them is grand and imposing." Much of the first-floor interior architectural decoration was installed around 1850, although certain features, such as the handsome Federal-style doorways are original. The east wing also was added in the 1850's.

After the siege of Petersburg, Major General G. L. Hartsuff, District Commander of the Northern forces, made the house his headquarters. It was during this period, on April 7, 1865, that Abraham Lincoln visited General Hartsuff at Centre Hill. Centre Hill remained in the Bolling family until 1901, when it was purchased by Charles Hall Davis. When President William Howard Taft visited Petersburg on May 19, 1909, to dedicate a monument to the Pennsylvanians and General Hartranft, who fought in the Siege of Petersburg, he was a guest at Centre Hill.

Edgar S. Bowling purchased the house in 1937 and gave it to the United States to be used as a museum. It was formally opened in 1950. In 1952, Centre Hill was deeded to the Petersburg Battlefield Museum Corporation; it still serves as a local history and military museum.

Although Centre Hill and its setting have been somewhat changed over the years, the house remains, as it always has been, an important and well-known example of Petersburg architecture at its grandest.
