DESCRIBE THE P	RESENT AND OR	GINAL (II kno	Wn) PHYSICA	AL APPEARANCE

Old Donation Church is a brick, one-story structure with gable roof, a vestibule addition on its west front and a small brick ell addition at the southeast corner. The four-bay north front consists largely of later brick as is the masonry above the eaves line on the west front, portions of the easternmost extremity of the three-bay south front and all of the watertable brick. The masonry is laid in Flemish bond above the beveled watertable and English bond below. Ornamental brick detailing includes glazed header pattern and glazed Queen closers as well as what appears to be part of a diaperwork pattern, the centre portion being obscured by the vestibule, marked by twin glazed headers on the west front. The six original roundheaded arches of the window openings are laid with stretchers alternating with double headers, the outside one in each case being glazed. One of the three original chancel (east) windows has been blocked up. The gable ends are capped by a parapet wall. Set into the original brickwork on the south front near the eaves line are small openings, one being rectangular and the other having a round-headed arch. These windows were added to light the four "hanging pews or private galleries" placed in the church between 1736 Two similar openings exist on the north front, and although set and 1769. into the later brick, were probably copied after original windows on that The present interiors, including the reredos, altar, pulpit, lectern and communion rail and possibly the flagstones in the centre aisle came from St. Paul's Church, Norfolk, when the latter was restored in 1913.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Lynnhaven Parish Church commonly known as Old Donation was built in 1736 and is the third parish church of Lynnhaven Parish to have been erected. Although records show the existence of an earlier church at this location, the present building was erected in 1736, and the vestry records show that the vestry accepted this third Lynnhaven Parish Church on June 25, 1736.

Soon after 1640 Lynnhaven Parish became one of three parishes created out of Lower Norfolk County and Parish. The parish draws its name from the river, supposedly named by Adam Thoroughgood for his early home at Lynn, England. The name of the church itself is traditionally derived from lands given to the church in 1776 at the death of the former rector, the Reverend Robert Dickson, who intended it to be used for the endowment of a free school. The first printed reference to the name Donation appears in an 1822 order of the vestry noting "the church called the Donation Church in this Parish" to be repaired.

Not long after the church was constructed, the first of the private galleries was purchased and built on the north wall by Captain William Robinson. Thirty years later Captain James Kempe had a gallery built for his family also on the same wall. The two galleries which hung These hanging pews were paid for on the south wall were built before 1769. by Walter Lyon and Thurmer Hoggard. A vestry order dated July 10,1736, tells of six great pews which occupied the body of the church and a seventh on the north side of the communion table. In 1767 Colonel Edward Hack Moseley Jr. built a "great pew" on the south side of the communion table. As in the Bruton Parish church in Williamsburg, it was the colonial custom at Old Donation to segregate the sexes during Divine Worship. men were seated on the north and the women on the south if this could be arranged.

In 1822-24 the church was repaired after its neglect following the Disestablishment. Old Donation lay abandoned from 1843 until in 1882 it was burned by a woods fire. A brick vestibule has sheltered the west doorway and an entry into the vestry has been cut since the restoration in 1916. At this time St. Paul's Church in Norfolk gave the reredos, altar, pulpit, lectern and communion rail. In 1943 Old Donation again received the status of Parish Church and maintained this title until the diocese did away with parochial boundaries in the early 1950's.

Among the graves in the churchyard we find the earliest and largest stone dating from 1768. Many stones were moved here from neighboring plantations in about 1930.
